BY MOONLIGHT, CENTER MARKET.

To inform one-half of your readers how the other half live, it would be necessary to describe the habits of the country folk, for they constitute a large portion of that class. The countryman toiling in his harvest field, or resting under the shade, while enjoying his noonday meal, is a familiar friend of your city, reader, through the introduction of Darley, if not personally. But as he gets his stuff to market he is a mysterious geni; he was in his fields when the sun went down, and when it arises he is offering berries and print butter at the market. His "truck" is packed in the wagon at night, after hours or hard work in its preparation, and, after snatching a hasty supper, he is driving his well-fed horses to market, Here he arrives before you have thought of retiring, and his first lookout is to find a "place" where he can sell to advantage. Of course, the earlier he is the better. He backs up, unhitches, and feeds (his horses, of course, it don't matter whether he gets anything or not.) Then he curls himself up, if he can find room, among baskets of cherries and sacks of "truck," with baskets of cherries and sacks of "truck," with his head on a bunch of radishes, and lulled by the occasional bleating of a calf or the melolodious notes of a mule, he sinks to sweet represe. Soon he awakes, greets the rising sun, (figuratively,) feeds his horses, and then himself either with a lunch put up by the good wife, or with the indigestibles at a market eating-house. Then he putson smiles and patience and deals out berries and butter at exorbitant prices (!) to gracious and obliging (!) hoarding-house keepers. Then, when it's "too hot for anything," on a dusty road, under a broiling sun "homeward the plowman wends his weary way." Such is the life of the market farmer. "Let not ambition mock their useful toil, or"—but see Gray's Elegy for the rest, and when found make a note of; I'm too sleepy to recollect it. Without their useful toil the shop-keeper and the lawyer,—but that argument is as stale as a huckster's lettuce. I'll subside.

McVeigh, has instituted suits in the corporation court of Alexandria for the recovery of the property owned by the Messrs. McVeigh in this city, but confiscated and sold during the war. WASHINGTON AND POINT LOOKOUT RAIL-WASHINGTON AND POINT LOOKOUT RAIL-ROAD COMPANY.—A deed of trust from this company to Messrs. John S. Barbour, of Vir-ginia, and Robert Turner and Sprigg Belt, of Baltimore city, was entered in the clerk's office for record last week. It recites the purpose of the company to build two branches from a point where the main stem is to enter the District of Columbia, near the line of the Balt. and Potomac railroad—one branch extending to a point on the Washington branch of the Baltimore and the other branch extending down the Potomac river to a point nearly opposite Alexandria, Va. These brarches connect on the main stem, and are to be known as the Baltimore, Washington and Alexandria branch of the Baltimore Washington city and Point Lookout railroad. The company proposes to build this branch at once, and has entered into a contract to lease the same to the Baltimore and Ohio company for ninety-nine years, renewable forever, at and for the annual rental of $36,000, payable in gold coin semi-annually. This deed of trust is to secure 544 coupon bonds of $10,000 each, now issued by the company, to aid in the construction of the branch road, payable the 1st of June, 1913—the interest upon which, at 6 per cent., is to be payable semi-annually out of the above $36,000 rent. the surplus of which is to above $36,000 rent, the surplus of which is to constitute a sinking fund for the ultimate redemption of said bonds.—Prince Georgian.

On Friday last Nathaniel M. Soper, esq., died suddenly of appoplexy in Nottingham district. Mr. Soper was an old and much respected citizen, well known throughout the lower part of the county.

Charles S. Middleton, esq., breathed his last on Saturday night at his residence in Spalding's district. At the first election under the onstitution of 1850, Mr. Muddleton was elected sheriff of this county, which office he filled throughout the term with much ability and to the entire satisfaction of his constituents. In 1855 he was nominated for clerk of the circuit court, after a rather close fight in the convention, and was elected to the position by a handsome majority.—Prince Georgian.

AT A VERY SWELL WEDDING RECEPTION, lately, the high-toned belles held their arms like trussed fowls, to prevent the silk and lace suspenders that did duty as dress waists from falling off their shoulders. The same bridal party were, to the number of a dozen, photographed, and if I were to send a copy up to Connecticut, I'd not only be prayed for in the churches as one lost, but I'd be lighted to relieve churches as one lost, but I'd be liable to indict-ment for sending indecent pictures by mail.— N.
